

COVID Update
December 11, 2020

Dear St. John's Residents and Families,

I have very good news to report. No one tested positive for the COVID-19 virus during the last two rounds of testing which were on December 3 and 7. We tested again yesterday, December 10, and we should start seeing some of these results over the weekend. Waiting for COVID-19 test results is a bit nerve racking, but these tests are so helpful in monitoring the presence of this virus within our buildings.

Many nursing homes and assisted living buildings have had major COVID outbreaks either among residents or staff, or in some cases both. Our hearts and prayers go out to those facilities that have significant COVID outbreaks. We have been very fortunate in that we have been able to prevent a major COVID outbreak in all of St. John's buildings.

I continue to commend our employees for their work in preventing the spread of this horrible virus to our residents, tenants, and others.

Take Care and God Bless,
